

JITSU CONQUERS FIERCE GUNMAN "OUT TO KILL" TWO

Plucky Detective Marked for Death, Fights Before Big Street Crowd.

SAVES GIRL AS WELL.

Timely Warning From Chicago, and Martin's Pluck,
Averts Double Murder.

A warrant, issued in Chicago, for the arrest of Frederick Schultz, "Dutch Houseman," was given last April to "Gentleman Paul" Martin, a mid-mannered, dapper, slender detective attached to the West Seventeenth street police station.

"Go out and get this chap, Martin," said the lieutenant, "and don't forget he's a handy man with a gun!"

Information had come through underground channels that Schultz, who has an unenviable reputation in half the big cities of the country, was hiding in a furnished room house at No. 245 West Twenty-first street. The woman who answered Martin's ring admitted Schultz was there.

In a room Martin found his man. He took no chances and had his revolver ready when he entered. Schultz, covered by the weapon, threw up his hands. In the room, busy over a gas stove, was a strikingly pretty girl—Eleanor Wilson. Fascinated, she had run away from the home of her parents in Davenport, Ia., to join him in Chicago.

SCHULTZ PROMISED VENGEANCE WHEN CHANCE CAME.

"You fellows haven't got anything on me, and you're only going to make a little inconvenience for me," snarled Schultz. "But just you remember, my boy, that I'll get you for this some day."

Martin, who had heard the same thing often before, paid no attention to the threat. Schultz was escorted to Chicago where he stood trial three times on the charge he had robbed Dr. Louis L. McArthur, of the Michael Reese hospital, of $1,000 while the surgeon was performing an operation. Schultz "beat the case," and sank into the obscurity of the Chicago underworld.

He had expected Eleanor Wilson to accompany him to Chicago. But she had come through him too much of the ways of the underworld, and when he got "into trouble," she decided him for a "silly haired 'singing waiter' who had exhibited signs of affection for her, such as the early Chicagoan had not vouchsafed. The "singing waiter" was employed in a Seventh avenue dive, and she spent her nights under his watchful eyes, though in other masculine company.

Frederick Schultz and his record were forgotten, both in New York and in Chicago, until a "stool pigeon" slipped into the office of Capt. John J. Halpin, head of the Chicago Detective Bureau.

OUT TO GET THE "BULL" AND THE GIRL.

"Freddie Schultz is out to get a New York bull and a gal," the "stool" reported. "He's just left for the East with a thirty-eight. He's been talking about nothing else for a week. Bull's name's Martin."

This information Capt. Halpin translated in the following letter, which was received by Inspector Faurot, now head of the New York Detective Bureau, on Monday:

Frederick Schultz, "Dutch Houseman," has left Chicago for New York, armed with a loaded revolver. His intention is to murder Detective Paul Martin, who arrested him on April 29 on our warrant, and a girl known as Eleanor Wilson.

Acting Inspector Faurot called Martin to Headquarters and gave him the letter.

"Go out and get this man, Martin, before he gets you," was his forceful direction. "Gentleman Paul" smiled and bowed.

Martin sat Monday night in the cafe named, his right hand gripping the butt of a revolver in his coat pocket. The girl sat at his table and thought she recognized him. After a few minutes conversation, Martin decided she had only feigned recognition. At noon yesterday, Martin started out again to keep a watch over the house where the girl lived.

He walked up the west side of Sixth avenue, still with his hand gripping the revolver. He knew he might stumble on Schultz at any moment, and he had been warned that Schultz was "quick on the draw."

As he approached Twenty-fourth street Martin suddenly was face to face with the "vengeance seeking" man. Martin, who had been watching him, then quickly doubled in his tracks. Schultz had snatched the girl, and the recognition had been mutual. One hand took Martin within striking distance of his enemy. Schultz, although a trifle shorter, out-matched him by forty pounds. But "Gentleman Paul" had a knowledge of the law. Instead of drawing his weapon he relied upon his skill to manage Schultz. Seizing his opponent's brawny hand, he twisted the arm behind Schultz's back.

Schultz struggled desperately. A mild man would have given up the battle at the first twinge from the twisted arm. Martin could feel a revolver in Schultz's right hip pocket, but he dared not release his hold on the right arm.

HUNDREDS WATCHED STRUGGLE, TAKING NO HAND.

Several hundred persons gathered, but none offered to assist Martin, despite his appeals. He felt his grip slipping, and knew he could hold his powerful prisoner only a few seconds, when Alexander Kupferschmidt, of No. 21 Eldridge street, jumped into the tray. By Martin's direction, he pulled the revolver from Schultz's pocket. Then Schultz's courage evaporated. Martin sprang away and in the same instant drew his own revolver. Schultz was looking into his muzzle when he turned.

ROOSEVELT NOT A FAUCET; HE SAYS SO HIMSELF.

Cannot Turn Him On and Get a Gallon of Speeches, the Colonel Tells Originators.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 11.—Coming into Oregon on his campaign tour down the coast, Col. Roosevelt made his appeal here to-day for the Progressive party. The Colonel expected to make only one speech here. He was perturbed when told he was slated for three.

"There is a general idea," he said, "that I am like a water faucet, which has just to be turned and out will flow a gallon of speeches."

Col. Roosevelt's first speech was delivered at a luncheon.

STAR BOARDER IN MIX-UP; WIFE OUT OF WINDOW.

Husband Pushed Her, Says Mrs. Peterson; Witnesses Declare She Climbed Over Sill.

Mrs. Annie Peterson was taken to Le-East One Hundred and Forty-ninth street, Bronx, this afternoon, suffering from a fractured skull, a fractured arm and internal injuries. She said her husband pushed her from a window of their flat on the first floor into the concrete-aved area.

Sergeant England of the Alexander station arrested the husband, William Peterson, fifty years old, at the home of the couple. Peterson denied pushing his wife from the window.

"She stole money from my pocket while I was asleep," said Peterson. "I accused her of it and we had a quarrel. A young fellow named Paul Kissel, who boarded with us, took the part of my wife. There was a scuffle and she jumped or fell out the window. I didn't have my hands on her."

Kissel was found and looked up at a material witness. Neighbors told England they saw Mrs. Peterson at the window with one leg over the sill a moment before she dropped to the street.

BRETON WOODS, N. H., Sept. 11.—A skunk delayed the departure of guests from a hotel here yesterday by walking calmly into the baggage room and dispossessing the porters. When the Breton Woods police force was called it threatened to catch the manager on the hotel were not possessed as to a method of moving the baggage. Finally the offender solved the problem by taking to the woods himself.

"There's something wonderfully attractive about motoring during these fall days," remarked a young society girl to her friend, "but the wind and the dust somehow get through the finest veils and my complexion suffers."

"Do as I do," answered her friend. "When you come in from motoring rub

KEYSTONE "MUTINEERS" WORRIED BY HILLES

Chairman Hilles of the Republican National Committee has raised a storm over the alleged scuttling of the Ship of State through mutiny in the crew. At least, that is the way it is beginning to look over Philadelphia way.

Among those not removed from the suspicion of playing both ends against the middle the name of Henry G. Wasson has been mentioned. Mr. Wasson is the member of the committee from Pennsylvania, and is also chairman of the Republican State Committee of the Keystone State.

News must have reached the Committee early to-day that he was scheduled to walk the carpet in the captain's cabin, for he got very busy in Pittsburgh. Chairman Hilles received a telegram asking that the matter be held in abeyance until after the conference of Republican leaders tomorrow. Major McGee of Pittsburgh is much interested in the case of Mr. Wasson and is attempting to bring about an adjustment.

What leaders are to be present at the conference has not been disclosed at this end, but the name of William Flynn has somehow been hiked up in the middle. It was stated that the Bull Moose leader of Pennsylvania was coming to New York to-day to confer with Chairman Hilles. Mr. Hilles this afternoon said he knew nothing about any conference between him and Mr. Flynn, and if Mr. Flynn was coming to New York to see him it was entirely confidential between Mr. Flynn and Mr. Flynn.

The plot thickens.
